

Virginia Held

How Terrorism Is Wrong: Morality and Political Violence

New York: Oxford University Press, 2008

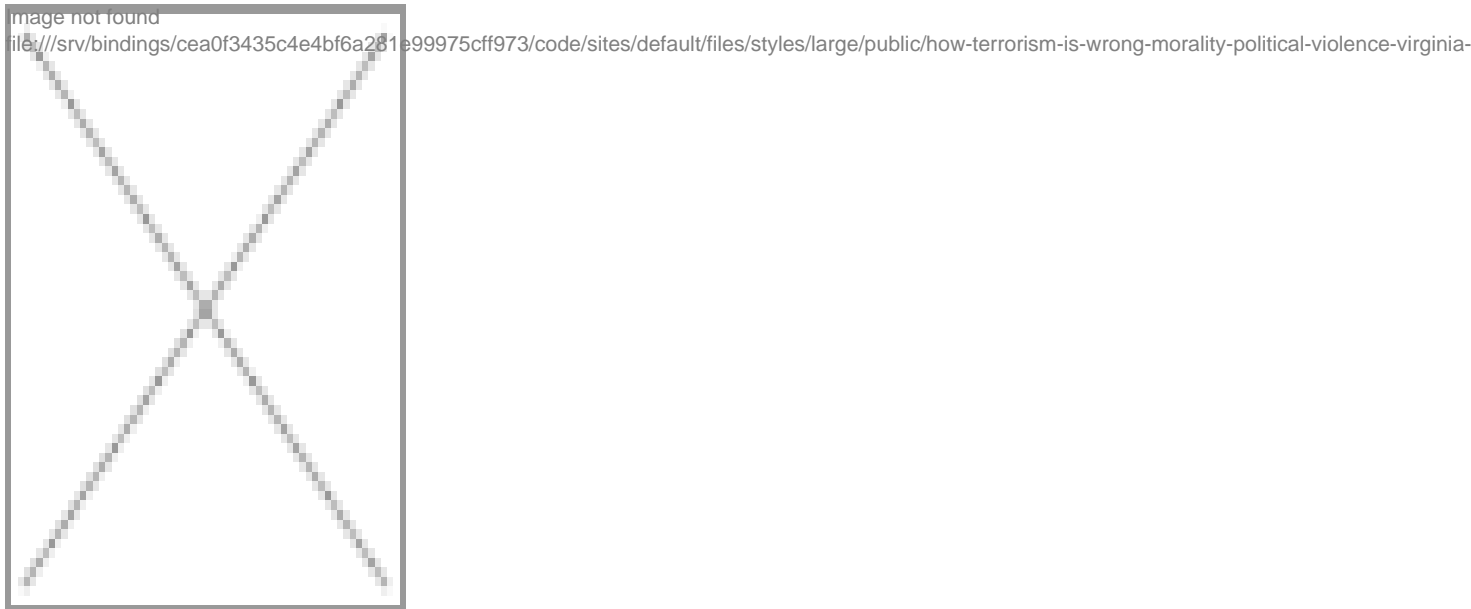

Reviewed by Susan Hawthorne, 2012

Hypatia 27.1 (2012): 219-222

Available to Hypatia subscribers from Wiley-Blackwell:

<http://onlinelibrary.wiley.com/doi/10.1111/j.1527-2001.2010.01150.x/full>

Susan Hawthorne has a PhD in political science and women's studies from the University of Melbourne. A philosopher and theorist (and poet), she has written about war and terrorism and co-edited with Bronwyn Winter, September 11, 2011: Feminist Perspectives. She is also the author of Wild Politics: Feminism, Globalisation and Bio/diversity (2002). She is adjunct professor at James Cook University, Townsville, Australia. (hawsu@spinifexpress.com.au)

Held's examination of terrorism is like work by one of the great miniaturist painters. Held makes you consider the detail, and slowly she pulls you into the framework of her argument.

Hypatia Reviews Online
editor@hypatiareviews.org

Website supported by Michael Digital